Custody/Access Dispute Contract

The purpose of this contract is to obtain written agreement that Najmeh Hourmanesh, PhD/ Road To Healing Counseling will not be asked to participate in any litigation regarding a custody/access dispute. If I am asked to participate in litigation, the neutral role with the family will be compromised. This is likely to seriously jeopardize any progress that may have been made in therapy. In order to prevent such deterioration of any therapy, it is crucial that you understand there will be absolutely no involvement on my part in any current or future litigation between the parents.

We wish to enlist the services of Najmeh Hourmanesh, PhD/ Road To Healing Counseling in the treatment of our family member(s). We understand that such treatment will be compromised if information revealed therein is brought to the attention of the court in the course of a custody/access dispute. Accordingly, we mutually pledge that we will neither individually nor jointly involve Najmeh Hourmanesh, PhD/ Road To Healing Counseling in any litigation whatsoever. We will neither request nor require Najmeh Hourmanesh, PhD to provide testimony in court. If the services of a mental health professional are desired for court purposes, the services of a person outside of Road To Healing Counseling must be enlisted.

We have read the above, discussed these provisions and agree to proceed with therapy under the terms of this agreement.
